A Synopsis of the Eight Vessels in the Chinese Literature of Internal Cultivation

Charles Chace 2018

Spontaneity/Self-so

In Laozi

Humanity relies on Earth 人法地
Earth relies on Heaven 地法天
Heaven relies on the Way 天法道
The Way relies on Zi Ran 道法自然

Lao zi 25

In Neidan

The primal mystery is the unitary qi. Within that mystery is a mystery that is our mandate, within that mandate is a mandate that is our form, within that form there is a a form that is our essence, within that essence there is an essence that is our qi within that qi there is a qi that is are spirit, and within that spirit there is a spirit that is our self-so nature.

玄元者，一炁也。玄中有玄是我命，命中有命是我形，形中有形是我精，精中有精是我炁，炁中有炁是我神，神中有神是我自然

The Discussion on the Essential Subtleties of Embryonic Breathing. (Taixi jingwei lun 胎息精微論 (CH0308))

In Zen

The seed has no idea of being some particular plant, but it has its own form and is in perfect harmony with the ground, with its surroundings,…. And there is no trouble. This is what we mean by naturalness.

Shunryu Suzuki

Stillness (jing)

IN MEDICINE

"The movement in the dynamic is not separate from its empty spaces; the dynamic at the center of this empty space is clear, still, and subtle."

機之動不離其空 空中之機 清靜 微
Ling Shu –1ii

"Qi is difficult to control. Swift, like a galloping horse, only in Stillness can it be altered [eased]."

炁之難御 迅若奔馬 唯靜者為易
Ma Danyang 馬丹陽 (1123---1184)ii

"The Supreme Ultimate is still and pure, and yet seems to stir, the transcendent dynamic of this divine aperture is unsurpassed"

太極靜純如有動 仙機靈竅在無前
Wu Chongxu 伍沖虛 (1574---1644)iv

"[By means of] utmost emptiness and utmost stillness, in following the way and emulating what is spontaneously so, one will fly up and become transcendent."

至虚至靜道法 自然飛升而仙
Zhang Boduan 張伯端 (983---1082)v

Opening (tong 通)

IN MEDICINE

"For this reason, they were able to live long and open themselves to heaven and earth, and so they lacked any end. This was their Way of living."

故能壽敞天地 無有終時 此其道生
Su Wen ---1

"The Yellow Emperor said: Now, there are those who since ancient times were open to heaven. The root of their lives was rooted in yin and yang, between heaven and within the six directions."

黃帝曰 自古通天者 生之本 本於陰陽天地之間 六合之方
Su Wen ---3
“Their qi was [resonant with] the nine prefectures, the nine apertures [of the body], the five viscera, and the twelve articulations, all of which was penetrated by heavenly qi.”

其氣九州九竅五臟十二節。皆通乎天氣
Su Wen---3

IN NEIDAN

“My elder brother Kui Yizi said: When the eight vessels are open, disease is cured. Completely rely on concentrating on this in performing your practice.”

胞長兄魁一子曰：八脈開通卻病無，全憑心意用功夫。
Zhao Bichen　趙避塵 (1933)

The Intersection of Medicine and Internal Cultivation

For this reason, those who practice medicine and know of the eight vessels comprehend the great purpose of the 12 channels and 15 networks. Those who practice transcendence and know of the eight vessels miraculously attain the ascent and descent of the tiger and dragon, and the subtle aperture of the Mysterious Female.

是故醫而知乎八脈則十二經十五絡之大旨得矣仙而知乎八脈則虎龍升降玄牝幽微之竅妙得矣
Li Shizhen　李時珍 (1576)
